Lead Heart (Seraph Black Book 3)

Synopsis

“The paint dripped off me like a liquid coat and I inhaled the toxic fumes, sucking the undiluted scent into my lungs. My pupils dilated as I sank into the vision of a pain so absolute, it went beyond pain. It should have rendered me unconscious, it should have affected my ability, it felt like it should have killed me. As it was, the pain distracted me so badly that I was unable to focus on any other details. I painted turquoise wounds that wept turquoise blood onto the paper floor, and when I was finished, I painted more. I painted the walls, the floor, the back of the door and the boarded-up windows. I covered the room in wounds and fumes, and then I curled up in the middle of the mess, weeping my heart into my paint-covered hands.”
The past few months have reduced Seraph Black to a permanent state of fight, and now it is all that she knows. She is fighting her friends and family to go off on a suicide mission to rescue Silas, she is fighting the fragmented memories that clamour for recognition inside her mind, and she is fighting a guilt so magnificent it might just force her to betray the very people that have sacrificed so much to keep her safe. She had asked for space, and it had been given to her in the most heart-rending of ways, leaving only one of the four brothers remaining by her side. Miro Quillan is her last hope. Without him, she may never get her pairs back. Warning: While this book is intended for a young adult audience, it is not recommended for persons younger than 15 years, due to some themes.

Totally going to reread this again! Answered soooo many questions! Who the messenger is. Why Weston keeps torturing poor angst-filled hottie Silas drool. Ok my ONLY contention with this book was on the last page literally, where Seraph says (talking about her pairs), "I would be with them even if they decided to live normal lives, with wives and girlfriends and children." So I'm totally hoping that Seraph is just being herself aka Ms. Martyrdom, and she ends up with all of them. I hope this is an official reverse harem, I don't want to just choose one. Besides they'd die without one another, right? Ok back to the book. I felt Miro was finally started to get sort of less into the whole I'm your teacher you're my student vide. Seraph finally admits she loves them all. She deserves love now. Especially the way Noah and Cabe treated her in Watercolour Smile, Miro needs to accept her as his Atmāfāj and Silas he can just stay himself he's perfecttt.... Thank you Jane Washington for creating this wonderful world. Now it is 2017? I'm totally ready for Portrait of Pain!

A suicide mission to rescue Silas...Trying to remember forgotten memories...Trying to save her pairs...Miro Quillan is her last hope...Whoa! With each book in this series, the story keeps getting better and better. My God! I'm so glad I bought these books!A read that kept me flipping the pages so fast that my damn Kindle froze! A highly engrossing and engaging read!Full of mystery, suspense, Zevgheri, powers, bonds, trust, secrets, stalkers and romance.Perfect for readers of urban fantasy romance/reverse harem.

That was OMGThat was I don't have words.How can some authors use words in such a manner that makes you feel everything? Every single feeling Seph has had passed on to me. And there were lots of feelings I must say.WOWMind blowing, is what it is. Yeah. Absolutely insane.I must say that Silas an Noah have much graveling to do to come in my graces. They have upset me in this one and I can't just erase their behavior. But even that way this was off the charts.What a great book. What a great author.I literally can't wait for the next book. I want to see more growth in their relationship. I would forever be upset if what Seph commented in the last paragraph comes true. I don't want any of them without her :(I want to see them working it out. And Silas needs to repent big time, the big liar. I know he's a very hot big liar, but that does not an excuse make!

I absolutely adore this series despite a usual avoidance to RH stories. I'm not even sure what prompted me to start reading it but OH MY GOD SO HAPPY I DID. Jane Washington's writing is just absolutely beautiful, and the characters are so complex and lovable and hateable and lovable again you can't help but be emotionally invested in all of them. I think I read somewhere that Jane Washington aimed to write a 'believable' RH story with this series, and if that's true, she nailed it—even more so with Lead Heart.

Cliffhanger ending that wasn't really a Cliffhanger! I have been waiting for 3 books now for the 5 to finally hook up and just when I think they will the book ends!!!! This book was action packed and full of twists and turns. Glad Weston isn't an issue and more, and hate that Danny is. I liked Danny and was hoping he didn't turn out to be the brother and then we he did I was hoping she could save him.

If I could give this any higher rating I would! This is one of those stories that sucks you in and inevitably causes you to go back and start reading book 1, because you're done with book 3, and can't part ways with the story or characters. I'm not even joking! Major kudos to Miss Jane for her skills in creating this amazingly inventive world, that is "our world", but with a hidden other side that no vampire or werewolf could ever hold a candle to. If you're looking for something different, something exciting and thrilling, a little mysterious and a lot hot fun and frustration...then introduce yourself to book 1. Then you can be a raving fan like the rest of us.

I received an ARC in return for an honest review. I have to keep this review short and sweet as I do not want to give away spoilers. As the third book in this series, I will say Jane DOES NOT DISSAPOINT! I literally stayed up all night just to finish as I just COULD NOT PUT IT DOWN!!!! I had to take a few days after initially reading the book to get my heart and head back to normal. To say there were twists and turns is to be the biggest understatement of all time! To say Seph has grown in this book is to say the ocean has some water in it. She has become a fierce (yet loveable) woman who is dead set on making her men safe! Hell has no fury that that of Seph when you take away someone that she loves! You see Miro, Silas, Cabe, and Noah's personalities really start to shine -each coming into their own. Within this book you see the men finally break free of what is expected of them and into what they truly want. My favorite part of this book....it's the fact that Jane answers so many questions that I had pondering the depths of my mind. Now to be fair, not everything has its resolutions, but I can live with what has come into the light. For the love of everything YOU MUST READ THIS SERIES!!!!!! I cannot wait for A Portrait of Pain to come out next year!!!! On that note, I shall leave you with some words of wisdom by none other than Miss Poison herself, "Pretty illusions usually exist to cover up something dangerous; it's nature's bait...but that doesn't mean all dangerous things are bad."

So like seriously! I need the next book ASAP! So many things and feels with this book! it's like riding a Rollercoaster of emotions! Jane just ripped my poor heart out and stomped on it when I turned the page and there was no more pages! Thank the universe I only have to wait a month for the last book. Jane definitely gets better with every book she writes!
