Susan Titus Osborn directs the Christian Communicator Manuscript Critique Service and is a contributor to the Christian Communicator magazine. She has served as an adjunct professor at Hope International University in Fullerton, California. She has authored more than twenty books and has taught at more than one hundred writers conferences across the United States and in five foreign countries. Gathered together are twenty-four of the industry's top experts in their field of writing and publication. Each contributor focuses on their area of expertise.

As a journalist who is beginning to also write for the Christian market, I found this book extremely interesting and helpful. The chapters cover everything from praying for guidance, to how to make your manuscript more saleable to how to write for different markets (children, teens, romance, historical fiction, education, etc.). I especially enjoyed the chapter about how to write humor by James Watkins (who has some great humor in print!) and how to make a living as a freelance writer by Dennis Hensley. This book is a wonderful resource that I will refer to again and again.

A Complete Guide to Writing for Publication is a well conceived book featuring excellent advice for those who desire to write for publication. There really is something for everyone and the information on different genres was excellent. Susan did a great job of including respected writers within the Christian field. I am a relatively new writer that has already had some success, and I can say that if people do read the book and follow the rules and examples they'll have an easier time of becoming a published author.
