1,000 Garden Ideas: The Best Of Everything In A Visual Sourcebook

Synopsis

THE BEST OF EVERYTHING A GARDENER COULD WISH FOR In more than forty years of travel, Stafford Cliff—designer and gardener—has gathered a planet's worth of inspiration on elements to enhance a garden. The result is 1000 Garden Ideas, a visual encyclopedia bursting with just about every garden idea ever invented by man or inspired by nature, artfully presented in more than 1000 photographs. Plantings may be the essence of the garden, whether it's a tiny patch in the backyard or acres of land extending for as far as the eye can see. But elements worthy of the planting can take a garden to unique and exciting new heights. With a designer's eye and a gardener's heart, Cliff has assembled an endless array of ideas, from all over the world, to make a garden more personal: fences and pools, paths and benches, statues and waterfalls, borders and bridges—even birdhouses and follies. Within each category are hundreds of illustrated examples, ranging from traditional to contemporary; from simple to complex; from homey and rustic to downright Byzantine. It's all here, whatever your taste, your need, or your fantasy. And if you're breathless with so many choices, Stafford Cliff is there to help you arrive at the best decisions for your own particular space, through a series of questions: Do you want privacy or maximum light? Do you envision a contrast to the style of your home or neighborhood, or complete harmony? Do you prefer peace and quiet, or the soothing sounds of rustling leaves, bubbling water, and bird song? There's glorious visual advice on plants and plantings: what kinds of containers to put them in; how to use them in your space; what to surround them with; and much more. In addition, an extensive list of suppliers makes it possible for you to turn inspiration into reality. If you're a seasoned gardener, or even if you're an aspiring one, this is a book for you, lush with ideas for the garden of your dreams.

Design consultant and art director Stafford Cliff has spent a lifetime designing catalogs and magazines relating to the home. Working with Sir Terence Conran he produced the very first Habitat catalogs and, in 1974, designed The House Book, one of the first truly design-led guides to interior furnishing, which became the biggest selling home book of all time. Since then he has produced dozens of books on aspects of design and the home-- most recently The Way We Live, a remarkable 480-page survey of homes around the world, and two titles for Artisan: Home, a groundbreaking investigation into how we feel about our homes, and 1000 Garden Ideas, a visual sourcebook featuring garden and patio elements from around the world.

I was happy to find this book for my husband. It was in better condition than the single copy that we found at a store, and it was a lot less expensive.

I am artist of painting for something idea. Something draw it from add to paper for painting it. That good book.

Checked this book out of the library, and ordered it on Prime the same day! So many photographs of beautiful gardens, every architectural style, simply a gorgeous book.

It is a great book for exactly what the title says- it is good for generating creative thought and ideas.

An encyclopedia of garden ideas, the one serious volume that displays an enormous variety of styles for all facets of outdoor decoration, setting the stage for your own design stamp.

Perhaps not the "best" of everything but definitely a visual source-book in a league of it's own. Packed with photographs and very little, text it's an encyclopaedic reference to a past of ideas, aspirations and tastes. I had borrowed it from the library but just had to get my own copy, so, yes, I do recommend it.

If you're a creative artistic person who knows what they like but can't quite express it this is the book you've been waiting for. Over 1000 pictorial examples of garden ideas laid out in chapter form for you to take to the garden center and triumphantly exclaim, "I want to do this!" Great for planning your landscape and considering all the design possibilities you may never knew existed. Don't hesitate here, you won't be disappointed.
