Really simple and absolutely excellent. Wish there were more stars to give. This is a collection of very simple drawing pages which look like the handouts you might get as homework sheets. The child draws pictures to represent the special characteristics of their pet, the good and bad times with their pet, then guides them through why pets die, that it's OK to feel all these emotions, and helps them find closure in the rituals of burial/cremation. VERY well written for children, and definitely helps them process their feelings in a step-wise manner. My 8 and 10 year old were REALLY struggling with the loss of our dog. As a parent, it was very helpful to see what their sadness, anxiety, fear, and anger were really about. If you're struggling to know how to best help your child after the loss of a pet, then this book is very very helpful. Good luck.

Although this book was helpful, I hadn't realized it was geared for children. However, it did help me a lot to ease some pain of my Beloved babygirl cat named Levi, who was my Furry Baby! This book SHOULD BE IN ALL SCHOOLS SO THEY CAN FIND THE TENDERNESS ONE SHOULD HAVE TOWARDS ANIMALS!

Great book (even for adults). It's kind of an activity book, with blank pages to draw pictures. Would probably be better if it were illustrated. But even if you skip the activities and just read it for your child, it has some simple yet powerful ways to process your feelings about the loss of your pet.
