I just came back from Paris and I'll tell ya, we absolutely lived out of my Moleskine. Before I left, I totally filled out the index pages with all of the museums, restaurants, bars, etc we wanted to see. I put in their address, phone numbers and hours of operation. It saved our butts! The metro map was very handy as well. My only criticism is that it really would have been helpful to have detailed maps outside of the core area of Paris. A lot of folks can't afford to get a hotel right in the centre of town and it would have been nice to be able to see our hotel area without having to buy a secondary map. Overall though, it's really fantastic.

I love Moleskines. They are elegant and nondescript, offer enough blank pages for your most creative drawings or lists, and are plain enough to look just as at home in a man's pocket as they do in a purse. I took this one to Paris and appreciated the multiple maps and street index. I love that there are transparency sheets so you can draw over a map without ruining it. It's plain-looking enough that you can surreptitiously try to figure out what Arrondissement you are in without looking all OMG I'M A TOURIST ROB ME PLEASE AS I LOOK AT MY GIANT MAP. Sturdy enough to be a nice souvenir of a trip or a personalized travel guide to pass on to your cousin who's headed to Paris next.

Used the Moleskine Vegas notebook for my last trip and it worked great. Perfect size, good quality paper and construction. Maps, info, planner all in one. You can't go wrong with this. Ordered the Paris one for an upcoming trip. Highly recommend.

I am a list writer. It helps me feel more prepared. This is an excellent Moleskine notebook for me in preparation for my upcoming trip to Paris. I love that there are maps of the metro and also the city. I was able to write down important phone numbers to my credit card company, etc. and also had a spot to write in the addresses of those I plan to send postcards to back home. I also made lists of movies I watched in preparation for the trip (travel documentaries, etc.) and I made lists of all of the things I really didn't want to miss. There's plenty of space for little lists and thoughts while I'm there too. I recommend this to anyone who thinks that the time and thought you devote prior to a trip helps enrich the experience while you are there, and helps you remember what you did when you return. :)

Love Moleskine! This is a great and useful product. The maps included are an incredible resource to use when traveling. Loved the I could have are solid pocket reference of the metro (subway) and street maps. I would have probably purchased this if the maps were all it included in the Moleskine cover, but it includes so much more! Tear away sheets for giving out information or taking down directions. The sheets to put information on for restraints, hotels etc. are great, the only drawback is when in Paris there are so many great places it's hard to decide what to put down into the journal. I guess if that is the types of problems were dealing with then we are pretty lucky people. Can't wait to start filling one out for London. The best part is lending it to friends on their trips so they can have a personalized leg up on the average tourist!

I just received this to give my daughter as she's going to Paris next week. It's small so she could carry it easily. However, the maps and other helpful notes for Paris sights are printed in such light ink that you can't read them without a magnifier. They should have been in black, especially at the size they had to be for the notebook size. The paper and the pocket are helpful and will be useful for her, but I doubt the other will really be worthwhile trying to bother seeing it all. Not something I would repurchase. I would just buy a regular traveler notebook or blank book with a pocket.

I did use it on my last trip to Paris. I went knowing I would have to come back, so I took many notes that would be helpful in the future. It's not a city guide. It's exactly what it says: a notebook. However, the street index is very useful. I could prepare ahead and mark in the map the restaurant and shops close to my hotel and points of interest. I have the NY and London notebooks as well. If you need a City Guide this is not the book for you. However, if you like to prepare your trip, take notes about places to visit, foods to eat, etc. this book is great.

This little notebook was a positive lifesaver when I spent a semester abroad in Paris. My classmates would always borrow my notebook to inconspicuously check the metro map and save us from looking like that dreaded t-word: tourists. I have the memory of a goldfish, so the map was infinitely useful to me, as was all the space I made good use of to document important phone numbers and addresses. (Someone wants my number? Darn, I can never remember my weird new 8-digit one... BUT LO AND BEHOLD, there were even tiny tear-out squares I could copy it down on to give to cute guys. I mean, new friends). But most importantly to me, my little notebook serves as the best scrapbook that I could ever have envisioned for my incredible trip. Since it was always on me, recording memories and adding in ticket stubs was a breeze and I often did it on boring metro commutes. The notebook brings back so many memories without my even reading the journal-like content I added, not to mention that the pages I didn't use are literally the perfect size for the 3.5 x 5 photos I glued in when I got home. If you're creative with this product, it'll easily be your best friend and a wonderful, compact, memory of some of the best times of your life. This is my first review of a product on (though I've purchased dozens); I just had to share the most treasured part of my travels. :)ENJOY!
